

Correcting the Pronunciation of Your Name

Barbara: Hello everyone. I'd like to introduce you to Anita.

Anika: Thank you so much, Barbara. Just one thing, though. My name is not actually Anita. It is pronounced Anika, with a k. It's a common mistake.

Barbara: Oh, sorry about that, Anika. Thanks for correcting me.

Anika: No problem. [smile]

Now try it with your name when Barbara introduces you incorrectly:

Barbara: Hello everyone. I'd like to introduce you to _____.

You: Thank you so much, Barbara. Just one thing, though. My name is not actually _____. It is pronounced _____, with a _____. It's a common mistake.

Barbara: Oh, sorry about that. Did you say _____?

You: No, it's _____.

Barbara: Oh, okay, _____. Thanks for correcting me.

You: No problem. [smile]
